DEDICATION

To Mr. Boyd J. Glick—whose constant patience, assistance, loyalty and leadership have set great examples for us, we dedicate this 1946 AURORA in humble appreciation.

FOREWORD

We, the staff of the AURORA for the year 1946, have endeavored to prepare an Annual that will serve as a true and impartial chronicle of the events of the school year, and will be the means, in later years, of recalling to memory the faces of our friends now so well known to us all.

SYNOPSIS OF RELATIVES BY AFFECTION

The story begins when Shirley Evans writes a literary masterpiece of twenty words, and wins a six months' trip to the Orient.

While in China, Shirley gets mixed up in the war and is rescued by Ho Wang, son of the Yens, who is injured in the process. According to Chinese beliefs, Shirley's life belongs to Ho Wang.

When Ho Wang comes to America to lecture, he is accompanied by his father, mother, sister, Wah Ching, and the serving girl, Bird's Nest. Shirley invites them to visit her and runs into many complications.

The trend of events takes a surprising turn when a family council is held and romances sprout like mushrooms: Hobart, the butler, and Emma, the cook, confess fondness for each other: Sing, the number one boy, and Bird's Nest, the twittering Chinese maid, join hands. Also T'ze Kiang, a Chinese movie actress, and Ho Wang tell of their intentions toward marriage which helped things along for Shirley and her fiancé, Findley Davis.

Class Will

We, the Senior Class of 1946 of Bridgewater High School, Bridgewater, Virginia, being of sound mind and body, and realizing that we are leaving from said place, never to return as seniors again, and desiring to leave some remembrances, do here ordain and establish our last will and testament, revoking and making void any wills heretofore made by us.

We do individually bequeath:

I, Helen Anderson, will my bashfulness around boys to Pat Beckwith.

I, Roscoe Fix, will my place as president of the Senior Class to anyone who will accept it as a grateful gift.

I, Gladys Bowman, will my promptness to Bonnie Swartz providing she'll improve it.

I, Shelton Rodgers, will my rating among the girls to the Junior boys.

I, Marguerite Stickley, will my place as Editor-in-Chief of the AURORA to anyone who'll have it.

I, Robert Lamb, will my close attention in class to Elwood Roche.

I, Jean Cupp, will my ability of sewing to Betty Stearn, providing she will learn to use it.

I, Howard Sayre, will my easiness with girls to Norman Howdysshell.

I, Elaine Skelton, will my love of school sports to Mary Ella Rodeffer.

I, Bonnie Payne, will my red hair to Kitty Jean Thomas.

I, John Baker, will my frankness to Stanley Wine.

I, Erva Hassler, will my long curls to Josephine Lambert.

I, D. C. Flory, will my love of Mathematics problems to Boone Glasgow.

I, Elaine Frye, will my admiration of a certain senior to absolutely no one.

I, Willard Miller, will my quietness to Paul Whetzel.

I, Betty Dedrick, will my place behind the lunch counters to anyone who will slave as I have.

I, Junior Flory, will my job as sports editor to anyone who likes to write.

I, Betty Furry, will my love for receiving letters to Elizabeth Puffenbarger.

I, Roy Simmers, will my place in the Army to any one that wants it.

I, Margaret Kennedy, will my love for the opposite sex to Lois Shickel.

I, Charles Lee Leonard, will my love of studies to anyone who believes I like them.

I, Ruth Cromer, will my day-dreaming in class to Eloise Ford.

I, Dennis Wright, will my place on the first team of basketball to Henry Graham.

I, Lucille Jordan, will my attention received from a certain Sophomore to anyone who can take it away from me.

I, David Cupp, will my love for farming to Gordon Lee Rodgers.

I, Bette Garth, will my anxiety to get out of school to my sister, Nancy.

I, Harold Shickel, will my good management for the AURORA to any one who proves himself capable.

I, Betty Miller, will my tininess to Gene Miller.

I, Eloise Edmonson, will my long hair to Meda Smith.

I, Louise Herold, will my love for sailors to anyone who enjoys them as I do.

I, Wilda Rodeffer, will my Saturday night dates to Leo Miller.

I, Martha Shull, will my curiosity to Minor Beverage.

I, Helen Snell, will my chewing gum to Miss Cline.

I, Frances Simmons, will my carefulness to Junior Eye.

I, Marietta Armstrong, will my cheerfulness to Evangeline Miller.

Given under our hand and seal this 31st day of May, 1946.

Prophecy

It was a beautiful night as I strolled over the hill. Shortly, I became inspired by the stillness of the night—the moon shining, the katydids singing and the stars twinkling. As I lay watching the glittering stars they slowly took shape, but suddenly I was startled—someone was with me. It was a lady carrying a large crystal ball. “Fear not,” she said, “I am a fortune teller. You may call me Frantine—look at the stars.”

Just then a large star caught my eye. Suddenly it revealed our class president, Roscoe Fix, who was eagerly working toward his future business. The star told me that he would some day become manager of J. C. Penney’s store. Then another star burst forth. It was Howard Sayre. I was amazed—he had no job. Then Frantine spoke, “Ex-Staff-Sergeant Sayre had just received his discharge from the Marine Corps.” She prophesied that he would land in Hollywood and become a famed actor. The star then glided west.

Frantine continued, “Are you not wondering about their buddy, John Baker?” Then another star appeared and with it John and someone else—but who? The star twinkled again—Oh,, yes, David Cupp. As the star began to move John and David asked, “Does Rockingham County still exist?” Wonderingly, I looked at Frantine. She explained that they were state agents of Virginia.

I heard strains of music—faintly at first, then louder and louder. As the star glided by I saw Eloise Edmonson seated at a piano. Frantine said Eloise had become very distinguished as a pianist of Phil-Harmonic Orchestra.

As Eloise floated away a group of stars glittered forth. Soon I realized it was the Big Dipper. The first star twinkled; it was snow white but—yes, a form was taking place. It was Betty Dedrick in a nurse’s uniform. Frantine said she was the main dietitian at Rockingham Memorial Hospital. The second star also revealed a nurse—only she was a private nurse. I was surprised to see it was Margaret Kennedy, who had become a very skilled nurse. Then the upper right star flared forth and who should appear but a very attractive airline hostess. I immediately knew it was Elaine Frye and was glad, because she looked so happy. Frantine said she was doing very nicely and working for Pan-American Air Lines. Just then I noticed one star was slightly raised as if a supervisor. I was very surprised to see that it was a doctor; there he stood, a big handsome person who portrayed dignity, ability and a good worker. It was Dr. Charles Lee Leonard. Frantine informed me that he worked at the Astoria. She looked in her crystal ball and said that he would be a great help to his father later.

The next three formed the handle of the Dipper. They were the Flory twins, Junior and D. C. who were working in research laboratories in Walter Reed Hospital at Washington. Frantine prophesied they were to make great discoveries but I would have to wait to find out what they would be. The last star was our last nurse, Erva Hassler. Erva is a very patient and capable nurse.

Again, I heard someone singing. I recognized the voice as that of Lucille Jordan. Sure enough, there she stood singing like a lark. Frantine uttered, “Later Lucille will sing lullabies to her twins!”

Before I could recover from this statement another star appeared. At first the twinkle blinded me. It was lovely Bette Garth standing there. Frantine said she was a John Robert Powers model.

All at once I heard a crowd cheering. The star revealed a grandstand filled with people. The baseball catcher was Dennis Wright and he was doing a swell job. I heard a radio announcer. Who should be the engineer but Robert Lam? The whole world was listening to the great ball game.

Land! here comes the Little Dipper. But it has a solemn, studious appearance. Frantine explained this was the group of teachers. First, there was Bonnie Payne speaking of times after World War II. She was a history teacher. The next star revealed Marietta Armstrong telling a class how the world was frightened by the first atomic bomb but now how the inventions and discoveries of the Atomic Age were accepted and used. The other two stars of the dipper flared up and there stood Frances Simmons and Ruth Cromer. They seemed very busy cleaning and cooking, and there was a group of girls. "Who are they?" I asked. "They," said Frantine, "are members of a home economics class." As they swished away the last star of the little dipper came striding up and along with it Betty Furry. "What is her future?" I asked. "She is making a name for herself—she is vice-president of Randolph-Macon Women's College." With that the small dipper splashed away and the next star approached, revealing a group of girls from which emerged Shelton Rodgers looking very pleased. Frantine said Shelton was a very capable office clerk and would always like the girls.

With that I began keeping time to music and there appeared Louise Herold playing her famous boogie-woogie. Frantine spoke, "Louise is going to Hollywood as a society lady."

As Louise started on her way she met another classmate, Helen Snell looking very dressed up. "Frantine," I asked, "what does Helen do?" "She," said Frantine, "is a very busy lady designing dresses for Hollywood actresses!"

At this point I realized I was hungry and what should happen but an apple fell—I looked up and Willard Miller stood in his star laughing. Frantine said he owned one of the largest orchards in the South.

Just then I heard the sound of a typewriter. As the star came nearer the typist turned and it was Betty Jean Miller. "She works for the Public Relations Office in Brooklyn."

At the sound of thunder I started to get up thinking a thunder storm was approaching. There stood Harold Shickel laughing as if his sides would break. "What does Harold do?" "He is a foreman at Kaiser Shipyards on the West Coast." Then a crane picked up Harold and in his place stood Roy Simmers. He was helping his father manage the farm since his discharge from the army.

Along came Elaine Skelton throwing softballs and Martha Shull counting the points in some relay. Frantine informed me that Elaine serves on the National Athletic Board and Martha is assistant to the professor of mathematics at Bridgewater College.

The next star portrayed Marguerite Stickley as a private secretary to the president of William and Mary College who is her husband.

To my wonder I heard babies crying. Lo and behold, there was Wilda Rodeffer with twins. She's doing very well. Frantine said, "Look out west." There was Gladys with children—I began counting—1, 2, 3, I couldn't believe it—yes, there they were, six of them. Frantine said, "It's time the stars are tucking under cover." I began walking between houses and the doors opened. Jean Cupp lived in one house and Helen Anderson in the other. I exclaimed, "They were pals in school and now they are housewives living across the street from one another."

As I neared the foot of the hill, I noticed the brightest star of all—the north star! As I gazed at it the entire class appeared for an instant and waved a farewell to Frantine and me.

The physical education period afforded a period of relaxation and recreation during the school day. It also offered opportunity to learn various games and to practice the skills needed in playing them. All in all, the physical education period was looked forward to each day by the students and faculty.

Wearers of BHS

This club is made up of those who have received monograms in boys' and girls' basketball, baseball, cheerleading and literary activities. A monogram is a thing to be proud of, for it represents honest, sincere efforts and achievement.

Second Row—Mr. Hollen, Dennis Wright, Mrs. Hollen, Mrs. Ikenberry, May Caricofe, Gladys Bowman, Louise Herold, Marguerite Stickley, Bette Garth, Frances Simmons, Grace Whitmore

Third Row—George Graham, Kenneth Eye, D. C. Flory, Harold Shickel, Tom Click, Alfred Kenney, Paul Garst, Elwood Roche, Bonnie Shickel, Gene Miller

Home Economics

The year has been spent in working on such problems as sewing, child care, cooking, refinishing furniture, budgeting and other problems which will be of value to the girls in the future.

The classes agreed to join the Home Economics Club by a majority vote. After paying a small fee each girl will be entitled to a membership pin and will be eligible to spend a week in camp during the summer.

As adviser, Miss Martha Sieg has done an excellent job of helping the girls prepare to face the difficulties and tasks which they will have to cope with in life.

F. F. A.

The F.F.A. boys organized and arranged their program. They have carried out projects including the scrap drive and clothing for relief. Money from these projects were deposited in the treasury to be used for room improvements.

Each member also brought fruits and vegetables to be canned for people of war torn countries.

The project of most interest during the year was the building of the brooder house on the school ground. It was financed by the F.F.A. treasury. A flock of chickens was raised and proved very successful.

Cheer-Leading

To boost our school spirit at the basketball games this year we elected five cheer-leaders, whose task it was to lead cheers. They have done a very good job. They are: Elaine Frye, Charles Lee Leonard, Grace Whitmore, Bonnie Shickel, and Paul Kline. Elaine Frye and Charles Lee Leonard are experienced from last year. Some of the well-known cheers are:

1. Have we got a team?
Yea, Man!
What a team
Yea, Man!
With a Susie-Q and a truck on down,
Come on team, Let's mow 'em down.
2. Two-Bits, Four-Bits,
Six Bits, a Dollar,
All for Bridgewater, Stand up and holler,
Yea, Bridgewater!

Left to Right—Bonnie Shickel, Paul Kline, Grace Whitmore, Charles Lee Leonard, Elaine Frye

"PEACE"

The storm is now o'er;
The rainbow is here
The colors of which
Blot out our fears.

The sun is now shining;
All is fair and clear
We hear no more longing,
For peace is now here.

We'll clean up the wreckage
Wrought by the flood,
And hope that ne'er again
Need we give our life's blood.

We've stood the test
Of our nation true;
Now we'll work for peace
And the red, white, and blue.

—ELOISE FORD and JOSEPHINE CHIODI, '46.

SPRING

Spring is coming, spring is almost here,
And all the world to me is dear.

And with the coming of the spring,
The whole wide world with peace will ring.

A world of peace should make everyone glad,
And with the coming of spring no one should be sad.

So let your heart with joy ring,
With the coming of the spring.

—MARY ANN BACK, '49.

A FRIEND

When the joys of life seem exhausted,
And your life as a whole seems to end,
Comes the time when you long for the kindness
And the soul-finding love of a friend.

May God pity the soul without friendship,
For a life lived in loneliness must be
Like a ship without a sail on the ocean,
In distress on the turbulent sea.

—CHARLENE VANCE, '48.

"MEMORIES OF MOTHER"

I take a picture from the shelf,
Which brings back memories;
I see a twinkle in your eyes,
And know it is for me.

I quickly raise my shirt sleeve,
And dust the picture with care;
I look again at your gay smile,
And know that you are there.

I remember when but a wee tot,
You tucked me in my bed;
And if my prayers I had forgot,
You gently stroked my head.

And when the morning light shone in,
You'd lift me from my cot;
And carry me down the long stair way,
To the breakfast you'd kept hot.

And then it was no time at all,
You did my hair so neatly part;
And say, "Off to school, my boy,"
And press me gently to your heart.

With all the cares and tasks of a Mother's day;
A cooky jar to fill and clothes to put away,
Pies to bake and, oh! so very many things
Yet she was always there when home I came.

Oh! If only I could see her once more today,
I think I'd clasp my hands and softly, gently, pray;
Dear Mother, please, forgive me,
As I didn't know before,
I should have been a better boy,
And appreciated you more.

I grasp the picture a wee bit tight,
And look again at your gay smile;
I make a vow right here this night,
To always be a better child.

If I should die tonight, I shall have known,
The blessings of having had you for my own;
I shall have had a Mother's love and care,
Which I would not have known without you there.

—SHELTON RODGERS, '46.

WIND BEFORE A STORM

When the sky begins to darken
And gray clouds begin to form,
And the wind starts blowing
You can look out for a storm.

When the birds stop singing
And the flowers look forlorn,
And the cock stops crowing
There is bound to be a storm.

When the children cease to play
And you no longer hear their shouts,
They have seen the darkened sky
And have gone into the house.

The ships at sea begin to toss
And gulls begin to swarm,
They have felt the mighty rush
Of the wind before the storm.

—AUDREY STAUBUS, '48.

SONNET

The first time I saw you I'd have never guessed,
How much I'd care for you through the next year
I gave you all the care my heart possessed
With no return of love my life to cheer.
No interest in me would you supply,
Yet always there was someone you'd adore.
Now many lonely months have travelled by,
Since you have gone to fight the nation's war.
But yet I treasure up my future dream,
You cannot stay forever far away;
'Though long the time until you come may seem,
You will be home for good some joyous day.
Each day I'll try some worthy thing to learn,
And live my best and wait for your return.

—ELAINE SKELTON, '46.

WINTER-TIME

The grass is blowing in the breeze,
The leaves are falling from the trees;
The little birds are southward bound,
They know that winter is coming round.

They build their nests deep in the South,
And raise their young 'mid rain and drought;
But when the spring-time comes around
We hear their old familiar sound.

—MARGARET KENNEDY, '46.

PEACE-TIME THANKSGIVING

The trees are bare,
The grass is brown,
The sky is clear,
The wind is whistling around.

The turkey is done,
The gravy is made,
The dinner bell is rung,
The blessing is said.

The world is at peace this Thanksgiving Day.

—ROSCOE FIX, '46.

"THE SUNSET"

At eventide, across the blue,
Beautiful yellow, orange, and pink
Spread across the sky, blending in hue
Like splashed bottles of colored ink.

Out from this yellow, orange, and pink
Comes an unseen blotter to catch its gleams;
And the blotter causes the sun to sink,
And the colors are lost forever—in dreams.

The beautiful colors—the sunset;
The damaging blotter, the darkening night;
The pattern of life in this is met—
Colors gleam, then death absorbs the light.

—CAROLYN MILLER, '47.

Bridgewater Spirit

Words and music by
NELSON T. HUFFMAN, '20

Tempo marcia

1. Bridge-wa-ter High, 'tis thee we cheer, As in the days of old;
2. We love thy walls and sa-cred halls; All in a hap-py throng

We praise thy name which is so dear, And stand by the blue and gold. .
We ral-ly to thy stan-dard true, With mirth and joy and song. .

CHORES

Hail to the school we all a-dore, And cheer her col-ors too,

Then to Bridge-wa-ter ev-er-more, We will for-e'er be true.
